The Resiliency Formula

- First Responder Capability
- + Emergency Management Capability
- + Civil Preparedness =
- Community Resiliency

Civil Preparedness:
Four stages of general disaster denial

- One: It won’t happen
- Two: It won’t happen to me
- Three: If it does happen to me, it won’t be that bad
- Four: If it does happen to me and it’s bad, there’s nothing I can do to stop it anyway

From Time, 2006
Recommendations: How to build a resilient community

- Balance Mitigation, Response and Recovery
- Make the citizenry part of the solution
- Promote independence rather than dependence
- Focus on the most vulnerable
- Create “social trust”
- Don’t over-engineer, rather, create conditions that favor a good response

Role of OHS in City/County emergency coordination:

- Resource sharing
  - Maintain and support City EOC as an element of SEMS
  - Manage and administer regional UASI grant funds

- Response plans
  - Develop/refine City-level plans and ConOps in coordination with County
  - Support County-level planning work groups and projects

- Information/intelligence sharing
  - Support regional communication, GIS, and technology initiatives
  - Manage and administer the region’s Risk Analysis Center
City/County Emergency Coordination Achievements:

Resource sharing
- Activation of City EOC in Sep 2011 to support SEMS
- UASI-funded regional emergency/security capabilities
- CRI and shelter cache participation

Response plans
- Regional Security Strategy and THIRA
- Regional Maritime Planner and associated initiatives
- Cyber-security exercise/planning initiatives

Information/intelligence sharing
- New/enhanced regional info/intel sharing capabilities
- Regional CIKR catalog/database

Other OHS emergency coordination considerations:

Current priorities and areas of emphasis

Coordination with other regional partners
Regional Response to Major Incidents

- All dispatch centers are connected to coordinate Fire, EMS and Law Enforcement response from the Operational Area
- Organizational structures are the same so command officers are capable of commanding other jurisdictional resources such as Strike Teams moving within the County
- Robust system of automatic and mutual aid within the County, State and Federal systems, with constant situational awareness between our coordination center in Monte Vista
- Multi-disciplined and multi-jurisdictional Type 3 Incident Management Team available in the County for immediate deployment

- County-wide common operational policies between Fire and EMS tactics while on scene of a major incident. All resources follow County Op Area Plans (Annexes)
- Communication in place between field incident resources and hospitals on major medical incidents
- Communication between Op Area EOCs through 3Cs system during large disaster incident

The County Sheriff is a key role player within the system. Each sheriff serves as the Regional Mutual Aid Coordinator. The basic concept provides that within the operational area, adjacent or neighboring law enforcement agencies will assist each other. Should the event require assistance from outside the county, the region will provide requested assistance to the impacted county. If the combined resources of the region are insufficient to cope with the incident, the Regional Coordinator contacts the State Law Enforcement Mutual Aid Coordinator at Cal EMA.
