New Grant Funding: Criminal Justice Research

Overview

As part of the Criminal Justice Clearinghouse, SANDAG partners with local stakeholders to provide project specific research and evaluations. SANDAG was recently awarded a new Project Safe Neighborhoods (PSN) grant award. PSN is a federally-funded initiative designed to foster safer neighborhoods through the reduction of gun and gang violence. PSN is coordinated by the U.S. Attorneys' Office (USAO) across the nation. In San Diego, the USAO of the Southern District of California received PSN funds to support local prevention and intervention efforts, including funds for a research partner. As a past research partner on PSN grants, SANDAG applied and was successful in its application.

Key Considerations

While San Diego remains one of the safest communities in the United States, it has not escaped the rise in gun violence occurring across the nation. In the San Diego region, the PSN funds will be utilized to provide prevention and intervention services through grants to non-profits and law enforcement agencies. All efforts aim to reduce violent crime, especially those involving guns or gangs.

As the research partner for PSN, SANDAG will enhance its tracking of crimes involving firearms around the region. These enhancements will address a gap in the data by gathering quarterly statistics for the San Diego region regarding gun crime, arrest, and calls for service, as well as information from individuals recently arrested regarding their access and use of firearms (as part of the Substance Abuse Monitoring program).

Next Steps

The funding will allow SANDAG to provide timely and reliable data to the USAO to inform the PSN partners on the status of guns and gun violence. This information will inform how and where future PSN funds are distributed.
